She Thinks I Still Care
recorded by George Jones
written by Dickey Lee and Steve Duffy

C                    F                 C
Just because I ask a friend about her
                    G7                          C
Just because I spoke her name somewhere
                              C7                F
Just because I rang her number by mistake today
C              G7    C
She thinks I still care

                    F                         C
Just because I haunt the same old places
                                G7             C
Where the memory of her lingers everywhere
                              C7             F
Just because I'm not the happy guy I used to be
C              G7   C
She thinks I still care

   F                          C
But if she's happy thinking I still miss her
                              G7
Then let that silly notion bring her cheer
F                    C
How could she ever be so foolish
  D7                       G7
Oh where would she get such an idea

C                    F                 C
Just because I ask a friend about her
                    G7                          C
Just because I spoke her name somewhere
                              C7                F
Just because I saw her then went all to pieces
C               G7   C
She thinks I still care
